

José Luis Ramos

Student Support Services (SSS) Counselor

Teaching bio sketch

I obtained a Bachelor of Science in Human Development and Family Studies from the University of Connecticut in 2004. I have been working for the University of Connecticut since August of 2008 and have been teaching the First Year Experience course every fall since 2009, with additional experience working with students majoring in the STEM disciplines. Working with first year students has been my primary role while working in the university. Aside from developing a rapport with students during advising sessions I have used the enrichment course to connect students to resources on campus, and introduce them to time management, public speaking and study skills. As an advisor and counselor I also have experience in academic advising, financial literacy, and time management. Additionally, I instructed the SSS Peer Advising course in the fall 2012 semester.
